ANALYSIS

Don't mistake NCAA win for final result

Adam Sparks
Knoxville (Tenn.) News Sentinel
USA TODAY Network

The NCAA scored first against the Tennessee attorney general in hopes of upholding its rules regarding name, image and likeness (NIL) benefits for college athletes.

A federal judge denied a requested temporary restraining order Tuesday, creating a speed bump for the states of Tennessee and Virginia in their quest to pause NCAA rules regarding name, image and likeness benefits for college athletes.

But don't mistake the NCAA's early lead for the final result.

Here's what the ruling means for the federal lawsuit and the University of Tennessee:

NCAA won first battle but not war

This is a small victory for the NCAA because it keeps NIL rules in place, at least for a few more days.

But there's no time for the NCAA to celebrate. There will be an injunction hearing in Greeneville, Tenn., on Feb. 13, when NIL rules could be frozen until the case is decided.

Judge Clifton Corker made that distinction clear in his order.

"The court addresses only plaintiffs' request for a (temporary restraining order) at this stage of the proceeding," he wrote.

Tennessee Attorney General Jonathan Skrmetti requested emergency relief to halt NIL rules before Wednesday, the start of the Division I football regular signing period, when recruits can sign a letter of intent with a university.

The Tennessee football team runs through the T during a game against Tennessee Tech in 2021. BRIANNA PACIORKA/KNOXVILLE NEWS SENTINEL

But Corker said those requirements for urgency were not met.

If the injunction is granted, however, it would be a much bigger loss for the NCAA and make this restraining order obsolete. But if the NCAA also fends off the injunction, it will compound the states' losses.

Judge pointed to obstacles ahead for NCAA

Speaking of that injunction, Corker appeared to indicate the NCAA faces an uphill battle to win the next round, specifically against charges that its NIL rules violate antitrust laws.

"Considering the evidence currently before the court, plaintiffs are likely to succeed on the merits of their claim under the Sherman Act (antitrust)," Corker wrote.

He said the "NCAA's NIL-recruiting ban likely harms competition" and therefore is "anticompetitive." Furthermore, he said the rules in question "likely foster economic exploitation of student-athletes."

Those are harsh words and a high hurdle for the NCAA to clear.

The suit also asserts the NCAA's NIL rules are unfair because athletes aren't allowed to negotiate NIL contracts or communicate with schools directly about NIL opportunities before enrolling or signing a letter of intent.

Corker agreed.

"The NCAA's NIL-recruiting ban is, in effect, 'an agreement among competitors to refuse to discuss prices with (recruit) until after negotiations have resulted in the initial selection of (an institution),' Corker wrote. "... It appears to be anticompetitive."

NCAA investigation into Tennessee moves forward

Although the Tennessee attorney general's lawsuit was never tied directly to the NCAA's investigation into allegations that UT broke NIL rules, they were always related.

Since the NCAA held off this assault, at least for another week, UT should expect the investigation to continue. But the direction of the probe could hang in the balance.

If the injunction is denied, the NCAA could be emboldened to continue its investigation.

But if the injunction is granted, don't be shocked if the NCAA pauses its probe or suddenly reduces its focus to minor allegations.

After all, would the NCAA seek to punish UT for breaking rules in the past that are unenforceable in the present? It certainly could, but that would be bold.

UT acknowledged the investigation exists, but it has not received a notice of inquiry.

So there's still time for the investigation to heat up or cool down.

Messi plays in Tokyo to end Inter Miami world tour

Safid Deen
USA TODAY

Lionel Messi entered in the second half of a soccer match in Tokyo on Wednesday and nearly scored in 30 minutes of action, salvaging the end of Inter Miami's worldwide preseason on a positive note.

Messi entered in the 60th minute of Inter Miami's match against Japanese champion Vissel Kobe at Japan National Stadium and appeared close to full strength from his adductor injury, which caused him to miss a match in Hong Kong on Sunday.

Inter Miami's match with Vissel Kobe ended in a scoreless draw, but both sides participated in penalty kicks to decide the game. Vissel Kobe won 4-3 with Messi not participating.

Messi nearly found the back of the net in the 78th minute, but his shot was blocked by the goalie. And his rebound nearly entered the net before another defender kicked it away. Messi also had several sequences where he dribbled into the penalty area in attempts to facilitate for his teammates.

Goal or not, Messi delivered on the pitch in Tokyo after his absence due to injury in Hong Kong on Sunday, which left fans and local officials feeling duped despite watching him participate in a practice with local children one day earlier.

Big business turned into a bout of bad business, forcing Messi to clear the air in a press conference Tuesday and play in Tokyo on Wednesday.

Inter Miami made stops in El Salvador, Dallas, Saudi Arabia, Hong Kong and Tokyo to capitalize on Messi's mystique during its preseason.

But Messi's absence in Hong Kong was a blow to the brands of Messi, Inter

Miami, and the MLS.

Messi was listed on Inter Miami's roster and announced in the stadium as a substitute for the match. But Messi was not among his teammates warming up for the match before the game.

When the second half began, Messi came back out of the locker room wearing a heavy jacket and long warmup pants, but wearing cleats instead of sneakers. He began warming up on the sideline as the second half began, much to the pleasure of the fans inside Japan National Stadium.

It appeared the rest seemed to help Messi, who entered in the 60th minute and told Gregor to keep the captain's arm band. It was distinctly different from his brief appearance last Wednesday in Saudi Arabia where he was testing out his injury and played conservatively.

Messi ran at a fast pace and his feet were engaged, dribbling into crowds of defenders as he tried to facilitate for teammates in the penalty area in his first five minutes. It appeared Messi ended the match unscathed.

But the same couldn't be said for his fellow Barcelona teammates Sergio Busquets, who slowly walked off in the 25th minute with a left ankle injury, and Jordi Alba, who finished the match despite aggravating his right groin muscle.

Luis Suarez, who missed the Hong Kong match due to knee inflammation, started in Tokyo and attempted a bicycle kick in the 72rd minute, but his left-footed shot was close to the net. He came off in the 75th minute.

Inter Miami had some tough decisions to make at halftime. Should Messi even play after Busquets and Alba suffered injuries? It would seem logical for Inter Miami to remain careful to the world's best player. But the pressures of that decision after the backlash Messi and Inter Miami faced after he sat out in Hong Kong made the judgment call murky.

Messi left the pitch after giving away his jersey, waving to fans on his way to the locker rooms.

After two weeks in the Middle East and Asia, Inter Miami is heading home to South Florida and will complete its travels clocking in at more than 25,000 miles in the air – enough to circle the globe once.

What is Messi's next match, Inter Miami's upcoming schedule?

Inter Miami returned home after its match in Tokyo on Wednesday.

One week later, it will host its final preseason match against Argentine club Newell's Old Boys, Messi's hometown team, on Feb. 15 at DRV PNK Stadium.

Inter Miami begins the 2024 MLS season at home against Real Salt Lake on Feb. 21 and will travel to face the Los Angeles Galaxy on Feb. 25.
