Subject: Open City Council Seat

Hi,

My name is Andrew Lorenti and I am interested in the recently opened city council seat left by Doreen Caudell. I have been interested in getting into government work for a while now and believe that this opportunity could be of a great benefit not only to myself, the current city council, but also that of the city of Clearwater. I believe that I am in a unique position in that I am 28 years old (well below the mean average of the current city council) and can offer many new and refreshing ideas. The city council, as well as yourself, have done a wonderful job so far. However, I believe that an influx of youth to the council would bring a large benefit. Imagine Clearwater in particular could be helped by my views and ideas since I most closely am able to identify with the younger generation (a generation that Imagine Clearwater is trying to attract heavily).

I realize that my inexperience may seem like a hinderance and give you some alarm in recommending me for this seat. I have proved throughout my life to be a quick and adept learner at all things and I believe that my mental acumen would allow for me to pick up the needed rules and regulations quite easily.

If my inexperience proves too much of a hurdle to overcome for this position I understand. I would very much like to begin a career in government work and any information or assistance you are able to provide would be incredibly helpful. The current "myclearwater" website makes it very difficult to find information on how to break into the city government.

Thank you for your time
